Introduction

- RPNCalcSeries calculators are a series of specialized calculators sold separately. If you have more than one RPNCalcSeries calculator, they will be managed and kept integrated in RPNCalcSeries environment. RPNCalcSeries itself is the runtime environment where RPNCalcSeries calculators run. When you buy a calculator, RPNCalcSeries comes together, free of charge.
- Each calculator has its own on-line User Guide. Please, check for it after installing the calculator.

Installation

- The RPNCalcSeries download file is a Windows Zip file that contains all the necessary files, to be installed on your Palm OS device, and related documentation files, on your desktop computer. Open this file on your desktop computer and extract all files to some directory, as for example “c:\”. A new folder named “RPNCalcSeries” will be created under the directory you chosen.
- Once decompressed, use the Install Tool application included with the Palm Desktop software, to transfer the RPNCalcSeries program onto your handheld:

1. Start the Install Tool program.
2. In the User drop down list, select the user name that corresponds to your handheld.
3. Click the Add button.
4. Navigate to the directory where you decompressed the RPNCalcSeries files (c:\RPNCalcSeries) and select the .prc file, and then click the Open button
5. Click the Done button.

6. Synchronize your handheld with the desktop to transfer the .prc file onto your handheld. RPNCalcSeries.prc is a self extracting file. After synchronization completes, RPNCalcSeries will be launched. For trial versions, you will have 30 days to evaluate the program.

7. Read the on-line Calculator User Guide to familiarize yourself with the Calculator facilities. The on-line Calculator User Guide is accessible through a Status key labeled with text "Help".

- Preferences and some other options are available through the menu that you can call by tapping the [Addin] key at the main screen and then tapping the menu icon at the Tool bar.

Requirements

- RPNCalcSeries for Palm OS is designed to run on Palm OS™ handhelds running Palm OS 5.x. It was tested under Palm Powered Solution Test with Palm OS Simulator, release 5.4.
- RPNCalcSeries requires the library MathLib.prc to run. This is a freeware library and normally is already installed on your Palm. If you don't have MathLib installed, you can find it in the RPNCalcSeries download file or in most of Palm related websites.

Program Updates

- Registered users are entitled to use future regular updates of RPNCalcSeries, free of charge. Remember, from time to time, to check our website for free updates.
- The latest version of this software can be found on the web at:<http://www.rpncalcseries.com>.

Registration

- RPNCalcseries is distributed as a shareware program, which means that you are able to evaluate this program for a brief trial period. Once installed as a trial, the product is full functional for 30 days. Full registration details for this software you can find on Handango at <http://www.handango.com>.

- Once registering the software, you will receive, automatically, through email, a registration code. You don't have to reinstall the software or download a different version. Just enter with the registration code, by using the "Register" menu option, exactly as it appears in the email. The Reminder dialog will no longer be displayed. Saving the registration code in a safe place is a good idea, in case you need to reinstall the software. In order to receive the correct registration code, it is very important you provide, during the registration process, the same Palm user name you have in your handheld. If you experience any problem during installation, please ask for support. It is recommended that you download the latest RPNCalcseries version, if you do not already have it installed.

Thank you for supporting this product by registering the software.
